

DISCIPLINES:
ARCHITECTURE

At LJB, successful architectural design meets the challenge of balancing functionality and aesthetics, all while maintaining schedules and budgets.

We view architecture as a participatory process, in which we work with our client to transfer their ideas and dreams into a "buildable" reality. We thrive in developing highly aesthetic designs, while incorporating vital information like building codes and government regulations.

Similarly, we embrace team collaboration to develop the best solutions. We have found that combining our ideas with those of the client, other consultants and end users inevitably results in a more functional environment. For us, the art comes in bringing it all together—functionality, aesthetics, budget consciousness and timely construction.
